New England's Beauty on Display at Huggins Hospital

GWAC is pleased to display the artwork of D.L. Kaulbach at Huggins Hospital this July and August (painting pictured above). A native of Brooklyn, New York, D.L. Kaulbach started painting in high school, but was sidetracked by a career in nursing, marriage, and raising four children. After moving to Marblehead, MA, she resumed painting. In the Seventies, Kaulbach and her husband, Dr. Maximiliaan Kaulbach, bought a vacation home in Alton. An avid gardener, she tries to convey her love of nature and in particular the beauty of New England in her watercolors, oils, and pastels.

Having lived in Europe and traveling extensively is a source of inspiration for her painting. She is a longtime member of Marblehead Arts Association, Swampscott Arts Association, and in more recent years, a member of GWAC. She attended courses at Montserrat, Endicott College, and N.S. Community College as well as workshops with Don Stone in Maine, Jean Dobie in Vermont and local instructors. She has exhibited in many venues across Massachusetts and New Hampshire.
